

Ruhrtriennale: Additional events due to popular demand

Bochum, June 05, 2024 - Due to popular demand, the Ruhrtriennale is offering an additional performance of Ivo Van Hove's opening production I Want Absolute Beauty. The original eight performances with music by PJ Harvey and Sandra Hüller in the leading role were sold out within a short space of time. The additional performance with Sandra Hüller will be performed on August 29. Tickets are on sale now.

Artistic Director Ivo Van Hove: "I am totally overwhelmed that people are so enthusiastic about our programme. And I'm really looking forward to the festival and to meeting the Ruhrtriennale audience on site and talking to people."

The Ruhrtriennale audience can also look forward to an additional concert by Nils Frahm at Gießhalle Duisburg: On August 31, the pianist and composer will perform Music for Ruhr for a second time, in addition to his first concert on August 30, which is also already sold out.

The Dresden Frankfurt Dance Company has another surprise in store for the Ruhrtriennale audience: On August 18, there will be a one-hour performance of One One One in front of the Jahrhunderthalle Bochum. Including 17 dancers and just as many chairs. Admission is free.

Further information on the programme and tickets can be found at www.ruhrtriennale.de. Detailed information and free images are also available at www.ruhrtriennale.de/en/press.
